PREFACE.

THOUGH the present volume of THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE is intended primarily as a topical index to the former volume, it is, nevertheless, complete in itself, and can be used independently of that volume. It contains substantially the same information as is there given, but arranged on a different plan, and to answer a different purpose. The chief object of the first volume was to inform the inquirer where he could purchase any given book (known by author or title), or the works of any given author; the object of this volume, on the other hand, is to show him what books have been issued on any given topic, and where he can purchase them. Each volume is, therefore, supplementary to, although not dependent upon, each other.

The mode of arrangement is by specific subjects, not by general classes. Books upon kindred topics are not grouped under a general heading, but each is placed under the particular subject of which it treats. Thus, histories of the United States will be found under United States (not under History); histories of Massachusetts under Massachusetts (not under United States); and histories of Boston under Boston (not under Massachusetts). Similarly, lives of individuals are placed under their names, and not under Biography; treatises upon the different metals under the name of each metal, and not under Metals; the laws of any country or state under its name, and not under Law, etc. Only universal histories, collective biographies, general works upon law, etc., are entered under History, Biography, Law, etc. This plan enables the consulter to turn directly to the object sought for without wasting time in searching among a large class of titles for the particular one desired. References, however, have been freely made from the general to the special, so that the inquirer who wishes to exhaust the field of any broad department of knowledge will have the necessary clues put in his hand. In exceptional cases only have references been considered necessary from the special to the general. References have also been made to nearly related subjects, and from the synonyms of adopted headings.

Novels, juveniles, plays and poems (excepting anthologies), have not been repeated here, as they are already entered in Vol. 1 under both authors and titles, — by which alone they are asked for and ordered, — and their repetition would have caused such an interruption to the alphabet, by the introduction of large classes, as to seriously interfere with the ready consultation of the work. Nor have been repeated the miscellaneous (collected) sermons and essays of individuals, which it would be impossible to classify under any definite subject, and which are only identified by names of their authors.

The compilation having been made (as in the first volume) from publishers' lists, and not from the books themselves, some allowance should be made for possible errors in determining the exact subjects of books with obscure or ambiguous titles. These, however, it is thought, will chiefly occur in placing the books under more general headings than would have been done had their precise contents been known. In some cases the titles were misleading; in other cases, when the titles excited suspicion or were indefinite, applications to the publishers failed to receive answers, or the answers were even more misleading or indefinite than the titles. These, however, were the exception. Publishers, as a rule, showed far greater willingness and promptness in answering inquiries than was, unfortunately, the case in compiling the former volume. By bearing in mind that books not found under the special subject may (for the above reason) be entered under a more general heading, the inquirer may often find what would otherwise escape him. (As, for example, under Church music will doubtless be found some books which properly belong under Hymns, and under Vocal music others which should go under Songs, etc.)

The necessary limitation of the Catalogue to books for sale in the American market in July, 1876, will, perhaps, cause the omission of many well-known books to be more readily noticed in this arrangement by subjects than in the arrangement of the first volume, under authors and titles. For this, two partial remedies are given. One will be found in the Appendix to each volume, in which the more recent books of most of the leading publishers are presented on the same plan as in the body of the respective volumes; and the other will be found in the article on Bibliographical Aids, following the Preface. This latter article, which, unfortunately, could only be prepared at the very last moment, and while under very great pressure of other work, Mr. Leypoldt has compiled from the greatest variety of sources, in order to furnish the student with a key to the bibliographies of special subjects. These two aids, in a measure, may be found substitutes for what it was not within the province of the Catalogue to give.

Titles of books, as a rule, have been entered more briefly in this volume than they were in the author-entries of Vol. 1, but not so briefly as in the title-entries of that volume, care being taken to retain whatever showed their relations to the subjects under which they were entered. In the descriptive part of the title, size and binding have uniformly been omitted, dates of publication uniformly retained. In a number of instances, dates which were omitted in Vol. 1 have been ascertained and inserted here. Unfortunately, this general deficiency of the publishers' records it has been possible only to a slight extent to remedy. Books treating of several subjects have been entered with equal fulness under each; and the collected works of authors have, as far as possible, been analyzed and entered accordingly. When fuller information about any book, than is here given, is desired, it will be found by turning (in Vol. 1) to the name of the author, or (if anonymous) to the first word of the title as entered under the subject. When the book is bound with another, or forms part of an author's works, etc., it is so indicated, in brackets, in the subject-entry.

The writer of this Preface cannot conclude his six years' labor of preparation and compilation upon this work without expressing the deep sense in which he holds the many obligations and kindnesses he has received, both from those with whom he has been associated in his labor, and from those others, outside, who have so cheerfully afforded their assistance and counsel. Of Mr. Leypoldt, it is scarcely necessary he should speak. He it was who conceived the idea, planned the work, who, throughout, has supervised its execution, and, more than all, who has had to carry (at the sacrifice of other interests) the burden of the whole financial responsibility. The credit of the work is his. To Mr. Bowker is due the credit of having largely aided by his practical, clear-sighted criticism, in removing the many difficulties which beset the work at its outset, and which followed it through so large a period of its compilation and publication. And to Miss Jennie Walker, who has been the principal assistant in the preparation of both volumes, full credit must be given for her accuracy of work and for her untiring interest in the progress and success of the undertaking. He would also take advantage of this occasion to mention his indebtedness to Miss Augusta I. Appleton, who assisted in the final editing of this volume, and who prepared the Index to the Appendix.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL AIDS.

The necessarily incomplete record of books, in the English language, in the American Catalogue (confined to the books in print and for sale, in this country, in 1876), has made it desirable to prefix some bibliographical hints and a list of bibliographical aids, which, to a certain extent, may assist the book buyer and student in the further pursuit of his special researches. In presenting the list of bibliographical aids, no claim is made to completeness, or even to a strictly bibliographical record of titles. Its object being entirely practical, the list has been limited to the more recent English and American bibliographies and reference lists. A number of foreign bibliographies, however, have been added, which were understood to comprise, more or less, books in the English tongue, or books relating to English language, history, and literature. In a few instances, where no recent bibliographical guides could be found, some publications of older date had to be mentioned. Some of the older and more valuable catalogues have also been given on a few topics, especially important to the American book collector, such as America, Shakespeare, United States, etc. Library catalogues have been given only where the libraries are peculiarly rich in works on the subject referred to, or where no special bibliographies on the subject could be found. In order, also, to guide the general reader, some practical courses of reading and reference lists have been included, such as are given in the Boston Public Library issues, the Harvard University Bulletins, the Providence Public Library reference lists, and others; and, also, under Reading, the more recent popular guides and select lists. In referring to bulletins and periodicals, the date has been given in place of the number, to indicate the freshness of the sources. A tentative effort has been made to trace some of the bibliographies appended to printed works on special subjects; but, owing to the imperative demand for the completion of the long-delayed volume, — with but meagre results. It is intended, however, to remedy this and some other defects (such as inconsistencies in the system of title entry) in a subsequent separate issue of this list. Co-operation in accomplishing this end is respectfully solicited.

Special credit is due to Mr. Porter's "Hand-list of bibliographies, etc., in the British Museum Reading-Room," and to Mr. Cutter's "Bibliography," in the Library Journal, as the chief and freshest sources used in the compilation of the list.

The necessary bibliographical hints could not be given in a more compact and instructive manner than as presented in the following extracts from a paper by Mr. S. S. Green, on Library Aids, which Gen. Eaton has found so valuable as to print for distribution by the Bureau of Education, because it "answers many inquiries addressed to [his] office as to the sources of information respecting the establishment and conduct of libraries . . . [it being] impossible for [his] office to publish at present fuller or more complete suggestions of this character;" followed by extracts from Prof. Winsor's pamphlet on College libraries as aids to instruction.

Mr. Green says:—

"One of the latest and best lists of books of reference needed by the officers of libraries is that contained in Mr. Winsor's paper on College libraries as aids to instruction. This pamphlet was issued by the Bureau of Education as Circular of Information No. 1, 1880. [See extract below.]

In the Special Report issued in 1876 by the Bureau of Education we have Works of reference for libraries, by A. R. Spofford (p. 686), Library bibliography (containing lists of books of reference and of articles in periodicals concerning libraries), by A. R. Spofford (p. 733), Scientific libraries in the United States, by Prof. Theodore Gill (p. 183), an article which mentions the best special bibliographies in the different branches of science, namely, anatomy, chemistry, &c., and Medical libraries in the United States, by Colonel J. S. Billings (p. 171), in which are scheduled the leading reference works needed in medical bibliographical work.

In Part II. of the Special Report we have as Appendix II. to Mr. Cutter's Rules, &c., a List of bibliographical works needed by the cataloguer. Mr. Cutter also states here where fuller lists may be found.

The librarian who consults these lists has to be on the lookout to see that the latest edition of a work is given in them, and that supplementary volumes have not been published to works there recorded. For example, a new edition of that very important work, Vapereau's Dictionnaire universel des contemporains, has just been completed, and supplementary volumes of Brunet's Manuel have been published within a short time.

A sure resource in case of doubt is to read over the lists under the proper headings, prepared by Mr. Cutter for the department 'Bibliography,' in the successive numbers of the Library Journal. The Library Journal has other valuable bibliographical matter. We note the following article: Reference books in English, by Justin Winsor (Vol. 1, p. 147).

The portion of the latest edition of the Handbook for readers, with regulations, issued by the Boston Public Library, entitled Books on special subjects, how to find them, contains a valuable list of reference books.

The Chronological index to historical fiction, and the Annotated catalogue of books in the Lower Hall, of the classes of history, biography, and travel, also issued by the Boston Public Library, are of great service in supplying humble bibliographical needs. Elaborate and valuable bibliographies appear in the bulletins issued by the library of Harvard College, and it is to be hoped that this library will have money placed at its disposal, in sums adequate to enable it to do a large amount of this kind of work. Similar bibliographies have been published in some of the bulletins of the Boston Public Library. The lists of books issued by the Boston Athenæum, the St. Louis Public School Library, the Young Men's Library in Buffalo, and the Free Public Library in Worcester, and the lists prepared by Mr. W. E. Foster, of Providence, for the State superintendent of schools in Rhode Island, are valuable for bibliographical purposes.

Some of the best library catalogues are very useful, such, namely, as that of the Boston Athenæum, the Brooklyn Library, and the subject catalogue of the Library of Congress.

Especial mention should be made here of the American Catalogue. . . .

Attention should be called to the fact that Poole's Index to Periodical Literature will soon be published, and allusion should be made to the useful indexes which we have of the North American Review (1815-1877), Christian Examiner (1824-1869), Bibliotheca Sacra (vols. 1 to 30, through the year 1873), Harper's Monthly (vols. 1 to 60, June, 1850, to June, 1880), Scribner's Magazine (vols. 1 to 10, Nov., 1870, to Oct., 1875), the Atlantic Monthly, both that issued by its publishers (1857-1876) and a Supplementary Index to the Atlantic Monthly, giving gleanings from the volumes already indexed, and indexing subsequent volumes up to the beginning of 1881, issued in Bangor, Maine, by Q. P. Index; to other indexes emanating from the same quarter, namely, a General Index to the Nation (July, 1865-Sept., 1880), and General Index to the International Review (1874-1880); also to other indexes which are promised by this publisher, such as indexes to Lippincott's Magazine and to Scribner's Magazine (vols. 1-20), and to another index still, which is promised by Q. P. Index conditionally, upon the receipt of a sufficient number of subscribers, namely, An index to articles on history, biography, travel, philosophy, literature, and politics, contained in collections of essays, etc.; to the New York Daily Tribune Index (1875-'80); Palmer's Index to the Times Newspaper (January 1, 1862-June 30, 1881, which is still published, and is working back as well as forwards); (to say nothing of the indexes to foreign English reviews and the Revue des Deux Mondes); to the Chronicles of facts and events in the successive annual volumes of the Boston Almanac, the Record of current events of Harper's Magazine, the Week in the Nation, lists of important events appearing in newspapers at the close or beginning of every year, and Annals of our time, with supplements, by Joseph Irving (1837-July 22, 1878). . . .

Four volumes of the Catalogue of the Boston Athenæum (A-T) have been issued, and it is hoped that the work will be completed before the close of the present year. This is the best example that we have of a printed catalogue prepared on the dictionary plan. It was made by Mr. Charles R. Lowell, but has been carefully revised and greatly improved by Mr. Cutter during its preparation for printing, and although he is unwilling to have it regarded as his ideal catalogue, yet, owing to his work, it has proved the most valuable contribution yet made anywhere to the list of printed catalogues of large libraries.

Mr. Noyes's Catalogue of the Brooklyn Library is now complete. It is constructed on the dictionary plan, with modifications, the most important of which are the introduction in alphabetical order of carefully classed lists of books on the various branches of knowledge and the frequent use of references to periodicals. Mr. Noyes's catalogue is an admirable piece of work, and one for which all students are indebted to him. . . .

As examples of annotated catalogues, we must still refer to the Catalogue of the books in the Lower Hall of the Boston Public Library of the classes of history, biography, and travel, the Fiction list of the same library, and to the Catalogue of the Public Library at Quincy, Mass. . . . It should be noted here with great satisfaction that Congress has enabled Dr. J. S. Billings to issue the first volume (A-Berliński) of his valuable Index catalogue of the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office, United States Army. Reference should be made to the lists of additions issued by several libraries, which are mentioned by name under the head of Bibliography, and to the Index Medicus, a monthly classified record of the current medical literature of the world, compiled under the supervision of Dr. John S. Billings and Dr. Robert Fletcher."

And Prof. Winsor writes:—

"When we consider the broad field of all languages and all subjects, we must probably give the first place to Brunet's Manuel du Libraire, the last edition of which (Paris, 1860-1865) is now being completed with some supplemental volumes. A book must have a certain prominence before Brunet chronicles it. This work is in its main body alphabetical by authors, but there is a classified topical key in the last volume. In some respects there is a more ample record in Grasse's Trésor de livres rares et précieux, but it is without subject clews.

If we deal with foreign languages and literatures, we must know also how to use Quérard's various bibliographies—his La France littéraire and La littérature française contemporaine, which with Lorenz's Catalogue général, 1840-1875, make a record covering 1700-1875. [A list of some French bibliographies is given in the (Lond.) Bookseller, Jan. and Mar., 1881.] In German the chief help is Heinsius's Allgemeines Bücher-Lexikon, beginning 1700; but its many supplements make it inconvenient in use. Kayser's Vollständiges Bücher-Lexikon, beginning 1750, has the preference for those who wish to use a subject index. Notice of other languages is hardly called for with the present purpose.

On the English helps I must be fuller. Watt's Bibliotheca Britannica is arranged by authors and by subjects, but contains nothing later than 1820. Its topical arrangement gives it often advantages over Lowndes, who cannot in all ways be said to supersede it. Bohn's edition of Lowndes's Bibliographer's Manual is the best to have, with all its faults; but it is an arrangement by authors only. Its eleven parts as issued are sometimes bound in six volumes. Lowndes published the work originally in 1834, and Bohn began the new edition intending simply to revise and add to Lowndes's entries; but as the work went on, Bohn extended his scheme, and the later volumes are much fuller than the first, and they contain the record of various writers whom Lowndes had ignored. In this way it is a pretty good register of authors who appeared before 1834, chronicling for about thirty years later their newer publications and editions of older works. The article on Shakespeare, for instance, is much elaborated, and is one of the best of the Shakespearian bibliographies, and it extends into other languages. The eleventh part of Bohn, in his sixth volume, is the only convenient record we have of the publications of societies and printing clubs, of private presses, and of similar exceptional issues.

Allibone's Critical Dictionary of English Literature is indispensable. It is useful biographically as well as bibliographically, but as there was an interruption in the printing the user must bear in mind that up to the letter O the record is not later than 1858, while after that it is in some parts as late as 1870. The author frequently gives under another writer, whom he may be treating of, sometimes with appositeness and sometimes with hardly any, addenda to articles which had already passed in the printing. Though a large part of the third volume is made up of indexes, which nobody uses, no index is given to these continuations, and they are lost unless the user makes his own index to them. They are of this kind: Under Syntax, the pseudonym of Combe, the record of his publications is continued, and as John Camden Hotten chanced to edit an edition of Dr. Syntax's Tour, occasion is taken to introduce a long list of Hotten's editions, to supply a deficiency under H.

These two books, Allibone and Bohn, are those chiefly to be commended; but for the publications of the day they need to be supplemented with Whitaker's Reference Catalogue of Current Literature for English books and with Leyboldt's Uniform Trade List Annual for American ones.

For books distinctively American in text or print, and which were still in the market in 1876, the American Catalogue is as nearly a complete guide as it is practicable to make. This catalogue will have, when completed, a topical index. Such a subject aid is at present found to a much less extent, but for small libraries quite sufficient, in F. B. Perkins' Best Reading. For older English books, particularly for those of too transitory an interest to find place in the bibliographies, there may be occasion to consult the various publications known as the London, English, and British Catalogues; also, such similar publications as Low's Index and the Bibliotheca Londinensis; and even the lists of current books printed from month to month in the Gentleman's and the London Magazines in the last century. So, for the older American books, one has to consult the list giving those back of 1776, appended to the last edition of Thomas's History of Printing, Trübner's Bibliographical Guide, and Roorbach's Bibliotheca Americana, 1820-1860, continued by Kelly [1861-'71], in his American Catalogue. . . .

The indexes of the important periodicals should always be kept in mind. There are two convenient lists of such indexes, one in the initial publication of the new Index Society, Wheatley's What is an Index? and the other in the little Handbook for Readers, issued by the Boston Public Library. Poole's Index to Periodical Literature, though nearly thirty years old, is a necessary adjunct to the reference shelves, and the new edition, now in progress under the joint action of American and British librarians, will add a new resource for the inquirer.

Of the great mass of library catalogues, a few principal ones stand out as distinctively and characteristically useful, and experience soon discloses them. As a general rule the subject catalogue of a large collection is a peculiarly American product; though some of the principal European libraries are giving signs of efforts in a like direction. Meanwhile, in Britain, the Advocates' Library at Edinburgh, the Bodleian at Oxford, and several sectional publications of the British Museum are of constant use in a well-equipped catalogue room. The publications of the latter institution include their catalogue for the letter A, which Panizzi put a stop to forty years ago; the catalogues of the King's and of the Grenville collections; and the very useful list of twenty thousand volumes which form the handy reference collection of their great reading-room.

Of the continental libraries it is enough for our present purpose to name the chronological and classified catalogue of French history and biography, prepared at the great library in Paris.

Of the American library catalogues I can be more particular. Those of the Public Library of Boston are probably the best known, beginning with the Bates Hall Indexes, two volumes, and including those of the Ticknor and Prince Collections and of the Barton Collection, still unfinished. This library has also issued for more general use annotated Class Lists of History, Biography and Travel, and Fiction, making, with their critical, descriptive, and advisory notes, the earliest examples of what has since been called the Educational Catalogue.

For assistance to scholars, however, we can hardly boast anything better than the great Catalogue of the Boston Athenæum, of which three volumes, bringing it to the letter M [now through the letter T], are now published, and into which Mr. Cutter, an exemplar in such work, is putting his careful and discriminating scholarship.

The Subject Catalogue of the Library of Congress, 2 volumes, 1869, and later authors' lists, with subject indexes, disclose the assiduous care which Mr. Spofford is bestowing upon the national collection.

The student, however, will rarely find for his ordinary work any catalogue to stand him in better stead than Mr. Noyes's classified Catalogue of the Brooklyn Library. . . . The Brooklyn Library will not rank with our larger libraries, but it is a good one, and this catalogue forms a better key to it than belongs, in print, to any other of our collections. It follows the Boston catalogues in giving annotations, though not to the same extent; but its references to periodical articles are more systematic, and in this respect it constitutes much the best single continuation of Poole's Index. It can be supplemented in some ways by the Catalogue of the Public Library of Quincy, Mass., which has other features to warrant its taking a place on our nearest reference shelf. I should not pass from this topic without mentioning the Catalogue of the Astor Library, 4 vols., 1857-1861, with a supplement in 1866, an authors' list, with a condensed index of subjects; the Catalogue of the Philadelphia Library, 3 vols., 1856, which is well indexed.

There is no occasion now for my mapping out the limits of the science of bibliography, but I simply give a reference to the article upon it in the Encyclopædia Britannica, 9th ed., vol. iii. It is the key to all knowledge and the sparer of unfruitful pains. . . . There is nothing to indicate its scope later than Dr. Petzholdt's Bibliotheca Bibliographica, 1866, and an examination of this thoroughly German specimen of erudition will teach one what it is to be a bibliographer.

There are two minor lists of classed bibliographies, sufficient for most purposes, in Nichol's Handbook for Readers at the British Museum and in the Boston Public Library Handbook already referred to. Supplementing these, the librarian will do well to watch the Bulletins and other Bibliographical Contributions of Harvard College Library, the Boston Public Library, the Boston Athenæum, and the Lenox Library. Nor can the librarian fully keep abreast of the literary progress without a file of the Publishers' Weekly of New York, the London Bookseller, the Bibliographie de la France, and similar publications of the other modern languages."

A select list of general and special bibliographies is given in Bost. Pub. Lib. Handbook for readers. The Library of Congress, Boston Public Library, Astor Library, and N. Y. State Library, are especially full in bibliographical works. The Library Journal has a regular department of the current bibliographical publications. A list of bibliographical journals is published every year in Schulz' Adressbuch für den deutschen Buchhandel.

The Bost. Pub. Lib. Handb. for readers recommends the following bibliographical periodicals:—"For current works in English consult Leyboldt's 'Publishers' Weekly,' which has taken the place of the old 'Publishers' Circular.' The London 'Bookseller' and 'Publishers' Circular' are similar records for Great Britain. For publications in French there are the monthly issues of Bossange and Reinwald, in Paris, and of Christern, in New York. The 'Polybiblion: Revue Bibliographique Universelle,' has been published since 1866. The 'Bibliographie de la France' has a yearly index of authors and subjects. For those in German there are the lists of Christern, Westermann, and Steiger, in New York. The 'Allgemeine Bibliographie,' published monthly by Brockhaus, of Leipzig, is a classified catalogue of the most important European and American publications. Other useful publications as records of current bibliographical issues are Petzholdt's 'Neuer Anzeiger,' which has been continued since 1840, with useful classified indexes, and the 'Serapeum,' now discontinued, also running back to 1840."

The general lists of the Publishers' Weekly are: 1. Weekly full title record, alphabetically, by authors, with descriptive notices, of the new American publications, and imported editions. 2. Weekly short title order list, alphabetically, by publishers. 3. Monthly reference list, alphabetically, by authors, subjects and titles, with references to the full titles, also a monthly classified summary. (On the same plan is the Annual reference list of books published from July to July, in the Publishers' Trade List Annual.) 4. An index, by authors, subjects and titles, of the annual summaries of the publishers (January). 5. Announcements of the forthcoming publications. 6. Select list of recent English publications. 7. Select list of recent French publications. The special lists are: 1. The educational catalogue (July). 2. Supplement to same (February). 3. Spring announcements (March). 4. Fall announcements (September). 5. List of summer literature, travelling guides, summer sports, etc., in the "Summer number" (June). 6. List of illustrated books; juveniles; and choice books of the year, in the Christmas number (November).

Biography.

The following directions are from the Bost. Pub. Lib. Handb. for readers: "Particularly, as regards Biography, there is appended to L. E. Phillips's 'Dictionary of Biographical Reference' a very good list of Biographical Dictionaries, arranged under heads of 1st, general, 2d, those devoted to particular countries, and 3d, those devoted to particular classes of persons; while in connection with each name in the body of this Dictionary there are brief indications of fuller sources of information. E. M. Oettinger's 'Bibliographie Biographique,' Brussels, 1854, can also be consulted to find a copious list of persons whose lives have been written, often by numerous authors; and also lists of general, national and special biographical collections. For American and British writers, consult Allibone's 'Dictionary of Authors.' Other authorities will occasionally be indicated in works of lesser scope, like Chambers's 'Cyclopædia of English Literature,' Duyckinck's 'Cyclopædia of American Literature,' and the literary histories of Hallam, Craik, and others.

"In Thomas's excellent 'Dictionary of Biography and Mythology,' frequent references to works and review articles are given in notes; and the same kind of help, to a less extent, will be gained from Hole and Wheeler's 'Brief Biographical Dictionary.' In American biography there is Allen, and a recent work by F. S. Drake, which is the best index to living Americans. A small work, called 'Men of the Time,' issued at intervals of two or three years, is an English guide to living subjects of biography; but it is of little value excepting sometimes as regards Britons. Martin's 'Dictionary of Contemporary Biography' may also be mentioned. For American Clergymen there is Sprague's 'Annals of the American Pulpit.'

"The French work of Vapereau, 'Dictionnaire des Contemporains,' surpasses all books of this kind. And as regards the more general biographical dictionaries, the best in English, like the 'Imperial Dictionary of Biography,' the Biographical Department of the English Cyclopædia, and that by Rose, are inferior to Michaud's 'Biographie Universelle,' and to Hoefer's 'Nouvelle Biographie Générale,' which last is particularly rich in references to sources."

The Cambridge Entomological Club has been publishing for more than five years a periodical called "Psyche." "The distinctive feature of the publication has been the bibliographical record The object of this record is to give an account, bibliographical and topical, of every book and article published in North America upon entomology since the end of the year 1873. . . . In addition to this regular publication by the Cambridge Entomological Club, the present editor-in-chief has contributed, at his own expense, as fly-leaves, a bibliography of the entomological writings of our chief American entomologist, Dr. J. L. Le Conte, comprising 152 titles, another of the entomological writings of Dr. G. H. Horn, 80, and is now publishing a bibliography of all the writings upon any subject by Mr. S. H. Scudder, 183. The bibliography of Le Conte's writings was printed upon catalogue cards, in accordance with A. L. A. rules, and was the first publication of the kind." — Library Journal, July-Aug., 1879.
